How to Make World Mission Rosaries

In addition to praying the rosary, there are special graces attached to making rosaries and giving them to others. In this document, you will find resources for making your own corded and knotted World Mission Rosaries as developed by Fulton Sheen. This would be a great project for youth groups, parish groups, or families.

Each color on the Rosary represents a different area where the Church continues its mission of evangelization:

Green: for the forests and grasslands of Africa.

Blue: for the ocean surrounding the Islands of the Pacific.

White: symbolizing Europe, the seat of the Holy Father, shepherd of the world.

Red: calling to mind the fire of faith that brought missionaries to the Americas.

Yellow: the morning light of the East, for Asia.

How to Pray the World Mission Rosary

In February 1951, while serving as the National Director for the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, Bishop Sheen designed the World Mission Rosary. "We must pray, and not for ourselves, but for the world," the Bishop said, "To this end, I have designed the World Mission Rosary. Each of the five decades is of a different color to represent each of the five continents." Bishop Sheen said that praying this Rosary would "aid the Holy Father and his Society for the Propagation of the Faith by supplying him with practical support, as well as prayers, for the poor mission territories of the world."

Each color on the Rosary represents a different area where the Church continues its mission of evangelization:

Green: for the forests and grasslands of Africa.

Blue: for the ocean surrounding the Islands of the Pacific.

White: symbolizing Europe, the seat of the Holy Father, shepherd of the world..

Red: calling to mind the fire of faith that brought missionaries to the Americas.

Yellow: the morning light of the East, for Asia.

Luminous Mysteries (Thursday)

Moments from Jesus' public ministry – with stories from the missions

The Baptism in the Jordan

In a hospital in Hong Kong, a Chinese Sister spoke to a young cancer patient about God, our loving Father, and about heaven, our eternal home. The boy, an orphan, told her: "I never had a father. I never had a home." Baptized, the boy made the journey to God clothed in Christ because a Sister had shared with him the fruits of her own baptism.

The Wedding of Cana

Mother Teresa tells of bringing rice to a hungry family. The next day she discovered the food was gone. It seems that a neighboring family had no food either, so the first family shared what Mother Teresa had brought them. The neighbors, of a different faith, were witnesses to Christian love.

The Proclamation of the Kingdom of God and Call to Conversion

In East Africa, a Catholic family heard of a village far from their own where the people had never heard of Christ. In prayer, and in love, they decided to move to the distant village so that day by day they could tell – and show – the people what it means to be a follower of Christ.

The Transfiguration

To catch even a glimpse of the glory that awaits us in Christ is a gift beyond compare for millions of people whose lives are a daily struggle. Such a glimpse was caught in Liberia, West Africa. When people by the hundreds fled from their homes in the midst of civil war, their pastor said, "They left all their belongings behind, but they brought with them one valuable possession – their faith."

The Institution of the Eucharist

World Mission Sunday, celebrated each year on the next-to-last Sunday in October, in the context of the Mass, reminds us that we who eat Christ's Body and drink his Blood are sent to continue his mission to the world. "Supported by Mary, we will not hesitate to devote ourselves generously to taking the proclamation of the Good News to the ends of the earth," said Pope John Paul II.
